shelter from the storm

Safe Haven will serve chronically homeless women who have mental health issues.

On the corner of Sixth and Oxford streets, the YWCA Greater Harrisburg is creating a Safe Haven for chronically homeless women who have mental health issues.

The residential program is taking shape in two semidetached homes, formerly blighted properties that have been rehabilitated by the City of Harrisburg. The YWCA is renting the homes from the city.

Safe Haven will provide housing for nine women age 18 and older and will also offer them case management and referral services as well as opportunities to connect with other supportive services in the community.

“We saw a need in the community,” said Angela M. Wise, Safe Haven case manager. “There is chronic homelessness among mentally ill women, and sometimes they are not fit for community living.”

The program is funded in part by a grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, but it requires matching and further funds to augment daily operations and furnishings.

Safe Haven is modeled on the Housing First concept that is used throughout the nation to reach people who are unsheltered on the streets, who have a mental health disability and have either rejected or not succeeded in traditional shelter and housing options.

message from the CEO

The beginning of this year will bring the opening of our new Safe Haven, providing shelter for women with mental health issues. We are planning events to celebrate Black History Month, and we are developing a racial justice program. In December, our children were presented with an award for the Junior Garden at the Governor's Residence, where they met Pennsylvania First Lady Mrs. Susan Corbett.

Orchestrating all that we do takes a dedicated group of staff and volunteers, and for that we are grateful.

As the New Year progresses and we continue our work, we keep our mission at the forefront - eliminating racism, empowering women. Our mission underlies every project, event and service we provide. In February and March, we will celebrate the achievements of African-Americans and women. With February being Black History Month and Women's History Month in March, we are excited to highlight the achievements of both groups. It is by honoring and showcasing the achievements of others that we learn and grow in a more positive way. As the commercial used to say: "We've come a long way baby." But we are acutely aware that we still have a long way to go.

Over the course of its history, the YWCA has embraced the dual challenge of racism and sexism. Member associations recognize that work eliminating sexism also requires addressing racism.

Eliminating racism is something that we need to tackle every day. We need more voices at the table to speak up on behalf of those who are being disenfranchised because of their race. As we rebuild our Racial Justice Committee, we ask that if you are passionate about making a meaningful impact, that you join with us in solidarity to communicate, educate and engage our neighbors.

Empowering women still requires hard work as we continue to advocate for equal pay and equal opportunities. In America today, women are still paid less than their male peers.

Among Fortune 500 companies, the vast majority of leadership positions are held by men: 96 percent of CEOs and 84 percent of board members are male. When only 16 percent of board members at these companies are women, it is evident that we have a long way to go, even as some progress is being made in the military.

The YWCA will continue to raise awareness to level the playing field and provide leadership opportunities for women.

with a little help from our Friends

“My husband and I are so very sincerely thankful for your help this holiday season. What was done for us was such a blessing that we will never forget! You should have seen our babies faces light up on Christmas morning!”

holiday giving brings smiles

We received notes of thanks, like the one above, from many clients who benefitted from the generosity of donors during the very successful 2012 Holiday Giving Program.

The program, coordinated by the Friends Board, collected more than $38,000 worth of gifts that helped make the holiday season special for more than 440 women, children and men who are enrolled in YWCA programs.

YWCA clients identified two needs and one wish and were matched with generous donors from the community. Additionally, donors gave items from our shelter wish list that included towels, twin bedding, toiletries, cookware, new clothing, diapers and gift cards.

Friends Board members Michelle Piscioneri and Toni Simmers served as Holiday Giving co-chairs and were assisted by a large group of volunteers who helped organize, wrap and deliver the gifts.

Thank you to everyone who helped make the 2012 Holiday Giving Program a great success!

Just around the corner is the residents' Valentine's Day Party on February 14, which is being chaired by Melissa Menke and Jean King.

The Cards with Heart campaign, formerly the Mother's Day Card campaign, will feature artwork by Camp Hill artist Julie Riker. Cards with Heart co-chairs Amy Gambill and Kara Arnold will host an Artist's Reception on March 15 at City House. Cards will go on sale mid-March.

For more information on any Friends event, please visit www.ywcahb.org.

junior gardeners receive community greening award

The YWCA's Junior Gardeners' vegetable and herb garden received a 2012 Community Greening Award from the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society.

Five of our Junior Gardeners attended a December 3 awards ceremony at the Governor's Residence that was hosted by First Lady Susan Corbett.

The young gardeners received a plaque from Mrs. Corbett, enjoyed refreshments and toured the Governor's Residence, which was decorated for the holidays.

The garden is a joint project of the YWCA and the Penn-Cumberland Garden Club and consists of a series of nine raised beds located near the YW's John Crain Kunkel Center.

Under the guidance of PCGC Junior Gardeners Chairman Franny McNichol, children from the YW's after-school program have done hands-on work in the garden and also learned how to start plants from seeds. They have canned pickles and made two kinds of soups from their own harvest.

The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society recognizes beautification and greening efforts in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

Additionally, the garden was honored by Patriot-News garden writer George Weigel in his "Gardening's Bests and Worst of 2012" as the "Best Results of a New Garden" for introducing kids to the value of growing food.

Safe Haven's spacious three-story homes have hardwood floors throughout, bright white walls and large kitchens.

One home has five bedrooms, including one that is handicap accessible. The other home has four bedrooms and office space.

A security system has been installed on the property, and Safe Haven will be staffed 24/7.

Wise said they hope to have residents moved in by the end of February.

She noted that the program's greatest need at the present time is for items that will make Safe Haven feel like a home, such as furniture, housewares and decor items. For a full list of Safe Haven needs, please

Safe Haven will also host a winter overnight shelter beginning in December. The shelter will be located in the basement and will be able to serve 15-20 women each night. Wise has reached out to local churches for help purchasing the folding beds needed for winter shelter.

Wise hopes members of the community will see that there is a real need for this type of housing.

"They see some of these women out on the street, and they've seen them out there for years," Wise said. "We're trying to make a place that they find safe enough to come to. I'm just hoping that we can meet the great area need."

Safe Haven, she said, will give its residents a safe place to begin to heal and work toward living in the community. "It's not the intent for them to live there forever, but long enough to help them get back on their feet," Wise said.

racial justice @ the YWCA

The YWCA Greater Harrisburg's approach to the mission of "eliminating racism" is rooted in the goal of "countering racism in ourselves and our community through education, awareness and empowerment."

This statement acknowledges that the work must begin with the individual, but that it does not end there. Racism is internalized within each of us, and institutionalized in all the structures of our society. Thus, we must take on the difficult task of unlearning racism within ourselves and dismantling the systems that enable it in our community.

Native American Heritage Month

November was Native American Heritage Month. Rebecca Balog, who is Projects Administrator for the Women of Color Network (a project of the National Resource Center on Domestic Violence) and a Native American, came to the YWCA.

Rebecca led activities with children in the YWCA's Grace Pollock Child Development Center and gave an excellent luncheon presentation to our staff. She provided a compelling narrative of the historical oppression Native peoples suffered by and highlighted the ways that our laws and society perpetuate injustices to this day.

This is very relevant to our work, since Native women are particularly vulnerable to domestic violence and sexual assault, and Native children are routinely taken away from their families and culture. For Rebecca this is deeply personal – and hearing her story as an Oglala Lakota Sioux, Mohawk and Czechoslovakian Gypsy was powerful.

She emphasized how critical it is to understand the situation of Native peoples, and to be allies in advocating for justice. To learn more, we made it!

A special "thank you" to all who designated their annual gift in support of the Donald B. and Dorothy L. Stabler Foundation match. We are proud and honored to announce that we exceeded the goal by $30,000!

The match will help us to begin addressing cosmetic and mechanical needs of the John Crain Kunkel Center that houses the majority of our programs and services. We moved in 15 years ago and have served hundreds of thousands of women, children and men.

Thanks to your support, we will be able to continue doing so long into the future!

5th annual pursuit of justice purse auction

More than $20,000 was raised at the 5th annual Pursuit of Justice Purse Auction held on December 6 in the John Crain Kunkel Center's Highmark Room. Proceeds benefit the YWCA's Legal Center.

More than 80 people enjoyed cocktails, hors d'oeuvres and music by the Steve and Doug Trio while placing bids during a silent auction of handbags and accessories by such top designers as Michael Kors, BCBG MaxAzria and Tory Burch.

Enthusiastic guest auctioneers Steve Turner and Cathy Boyle kept the bidding fast and furious during the live auction of handbags by Gucci, Kate Spade and Kelsi Dagger, as well as a Neiman Marcus Day of Beauty.

Thank you to the many sponsors and contributors for their support of the Pursuit of Justice Purse Auction.

The Legal Center provides free legal assistance to victims of domestic violence and sexual assault. Services include legal advocacy and attorney representation for victims in cases dealing with protection from abuse, custody, divorce, support and immigration.
